

MATER DOLOROSA

Because of one dear infant head,
With golden hair
To me all little heads
A halo wear
And for one saintly face I knew,
All babies are fair

Because of two wide, earnest eyes
Of heaven's blue,
Which looked with yearning gaze
My sad soul through
All eyes now fill my own with tears,
What'er they do

Because of little wreath marked lips,
Which once did call
My name in plaintive tones,
No voice fail
Upon my ear in vain appeal
From children small

Two little hands held in my own
Long long ago
Now cause me as I wander through
This world of woe,
To clasp each baby hand stretched out
In fear of foe
The lowest cannot plead in vain,
I loved him so

STORAGE RESERVOIRS

The San Francisco Chronicle publishes the subjoined, and many of the remarks are applicable to our own State.

The matter of providing reservoirs in the mountains for the storage of the water which is now allowed to run to waste, in order that it may be used for irrigation during the summer, is attracting considerable attention. Strangely enough, there can be found numbers of people newspaper writers and others, who contend that this cannot be done, although the experience of the hydraulic engineers in the past and several notable instances now in successful operation or under construction, how easily such a method of storage can be provided. It is a fact, as every one conversant with the situation knows that in the numerous streams in the southern part of the State which are used for irrigation, more water runs to waste ten times over during the winter months than is used in the summer. Settlers on the banks of streams where a water right is worth $1,000 or $500 an hour, see with envy a vast volume of water going to waste at one season, which, a few months later would be inestimably precious, and which, if there were any means of holding over until needed, would furnish an ample supply for irrigating every acre of ground that is fit for cultivation.

The claimants to these streams, holding by the right of prior appropriation, are accustomed to regard this "winter water" as it is called, as their individual property, no matter whether they utilize it or not, just as much as the flow of streams during those months when it is all diverted for irrigation. They are therefore exceedingly loath to see any project set afoot which they imagine may in any way interfere with their assumed rights, and many of them would far rather see this enormous waste go on year after year than encourage any effort to stop it. This is where the power of the State should intervene, and no man or set of men should be allowed to control any more of the natural flow of a stream than they can utilize on their farms. The idea that putting up a notice containing an advertisement of one's greed by claiming ten or twenty times as much water as can possibly be utilized should thereby make a valid title is absurd and should not for a moment be tolerated.

Every one familiar with the topography of the State knows that in the cañons traversed by the mountain streams there are any number of places where the expenditure of a few thousand dollars in constructing a dam across some narrow defile will enable millions of gallons of water to be held back from running to waste. There is not a single stream in the State, having its source in the mountains (as all of them do), where a dam to a hundred suitable sites cannot be found for the construction of storage reservoirs, where vast bodies of water may be confined without in the slightest interfering with the flow of those streams during the summer.

2014 STINSON & CO. Portland Maine

Jeff Davis is still firing the Southern heart.

We extend our thanks to Hon. William Woodburn and Hon. J. P. Jones for Congressional documents.

President Cleveland has already sent to Congress during the five months of his term more vetoes than Presidents Arthur, Hayes or Grant did during their entire terms.

A large public meeting was held in the City Hall at Victoria, British Columbia, last Saturday evening, the Mayor presiding. Resolutions were passed asking the Dominion Government to grant a respite to Sproule, who is sentenced to be hanged on the 6th inst., until reports of the man's innocence can be verified.

Washington is the town of bicycles. At every hour of the day its streets are crowded with "machines," ridden by people young and old. Even ladies on a tricycle have come to be a curiosity no longer. Of course the smooth asphalt pavement of the capital is a great inducement to people to avail themselves of this kind of locomotion.

The terms of eight Senators expire with this Congress. They are Hale, of Maine, Edmunds, of Vermont, Dawes, of Massachusetts, Aldrich, of Rhode Island, Hawley, of Connecticut, Miller, of New York, Sewell, of New Jersey and Mitchell, of Pennsylvania. They embrace all the old free States east of Ohio except New Hampshire. These eight Senators are all Republicans.

The majority of the Senate committee on Territories have agreed to report favorably, but with important amendments upon the bill granting the right of way to the Cinnabar and Clark's Fork Railroad Company across the northern border of the Yellowstone Park. The land to be granted is limited, the actual right of way. The number of stations to be erected within the limits of the park is to be restricted to three or four, and that provision which is commonly known as the Platt provision against the watering of stock will probably be incorporated in the bill. There will be a minority report against the bill.

The President has not forgotten the old habit of having a voice in legislation that he acquired when he was Governor of the State of New York. While occupying that office he sent to the Legislature more vetoes than any ten of his predecessors combined, and he is keeping up his reputation. He sent to the Senate on Friday two, making six vetoes that he has written since he became President, and an attempt to pass one of them (a bill which provided for the disposition of the pauper dead to the medical college of the district of Columbia) failed, there being only six Senators who voted for it. He also vetoed the bill to make Omaha a port of entry.

The final adjustment of the limits of the land grants made to railroad companies, as just completed by Commissioner Sparks, shows that these corporations have appropriated millions of acres to which they have no sort of claim. One company has had "approved to it" over 900,000 acres more than it is justly entitled to. Another has taken 225,000 acres outside the limits of its grant, another 170,000 acres, another 140,000 acres, and so on. A bill favorably reported to the House of Representatives provides for the correction of this great wrong, and there ought to be no delay in enacting it into a law. It provides that where the companies have taken possession of more land than the grants allowed, such lands shall be resumed by the Government at once, and in case the lands have been sold, suit shall be brought to compel the corporations to pay over to the public treasury whatever sums may have been received at such sales.

New Topic for Gossip in Washington.

The Washington Sunday Capital of Sunday prints the following: There is a new topic of gossip in town, which for the moment is almost as exciting in some quarters as "Dallier Joe." Mrs. Hearst, wife of the California Senator, having invited that eccentric person, Chaplain Milburn, to entertain company in her parlors on Wednesday last, the reverend gentleman carried out his arrangement by delivering a discourse on the poet Goethe, which was quite as remarkable as any of his remarkable prayers. Goethe, as everybody knows, was not only a great poet and philosopher, but a very enterprising and changeable lover of fair women. He never seemed to manifest any conception of what is known as moral principle in his relations with women, and there are chapters in his career that are hardly adapted for explanation, in refined circles. Rev. Mr. Milburn, however, is said to have dwelt at length, and with much freedom of expression, on the great German's amatory experiences, and some of his auditors are hardly through blushing yet at the strength of the terms which he used in his characterization. It would seem to be a pretty good rule for ladies who are going to give parlor entertainments to insist on the privilege of reading beforehand the poems and essays with which their guests were to be entertained. Even this, however, would be no protection against an extempore discourse by the blind parson, who has somewhat dull notions of what is appropriate for discussion in polite society. Mr. Milburn's discourse was fully two hours in length, and when he finished a young lady was heard to remark, "Mother, it was too long." To which her level-headed parent replied, "My dear, it was too broad."

Frederick Douglass has written a letter wherein he says: "I am a Republican, and did all I could to defeat the election of Cleveland. He was under no political obligation to me whatever, yet I held the office of Recorder for nearly a whole year under his administration. It is an office held by law and not for any term but solely at the pleasure of the President. While in office the President treated me as he treated other office-holders in the District. He was brave enough to invite Mrs. Douglass and myself to all his grand receptions, thus rebuking the timidity, cowardice and prejudice of his predecessors. If living, I shall do all I can to elect a Republican in 1888, but I honor manliness wherever I find it. I found it in Cleveland, and I should despise myself if I should let anybody think otherwise. Whatever else he may be, he is not a snob and a coward."

Interesting Census Statistics.

The report of Dr. Billings, Surgeon U. S. A., on the mortality and vital statistics of the United States, as returned for the tenth census (June, 1880) has been received by the Secretary of the Interior. It says that the total population in 1880 was 50,155,788, an increase in ten years of 11,597,512. Of this increase 231,219 per annum may be taken as due to immigration, the total number of immigrants for the ten years being 2,312,191. This makes the mean annual increase, due to excess of births over deaths, 87,522. The mean annual birth rate for the United States is given as 36 per 100.

It appears from data presented in the report that the United States, as a whole, during the census year had a comparatively low death rate and a high birth rate. The death rate is shown to be higher in the colored than in the white population, in foreign elements than in whites of American parentage, and in cities than in rural districts.

It can be stated positively that Secretary Manning's resignation is now in the hands of the President. His successor will be a man who will be acceptable to Manning, as well as a man whose Democracy is unquestionable. The President has several names before him in connection with this position, but has as yet reached no decision in relation to any of them. The general impression is that the next Secretary of the Treasury will hail from New York.

The New York World's Paris cablegram says Mrs. Folsom said Monday it had been decided by the family to neither confirm nor affirm the engagement of Miss Folsom to President Cleveland, as it was their wish to keep Miss Folsom from being subjected to scrutiny and annoyance while on her travels in Europe. The family are living in the quietest fashion, and their desire is to avoid, while abroad, the social attentions which a confirmation of the engagement would necessarily have brought to Miss Folsom. "I don't confirm the engagement," said Mrs. Folsom, "but you can draw your own conclusion from the fact that the tresson is nearly finished."

Miss Folsom leaves Paris for London on the 10th, and will remain in the English capital a week, and it is expected that she will be presented at court. She will leave Liverpool on the 18th. Since Miss Folsom left America last Fall she has visited France, the Netherlands, Germany, Austria and Italy, doing the galleries and seeing the lions. The family were in Rome during the carnival, and while there Mrs. Folsom had a severe attack of malarial fever. This, however, did not prevent them from continuing their travels as far as Geneva, where the fever developed such alarming symptoms that they were obliged to stay six weeks until the convalescence of the patient permitted them to continue the journey.

Wool Market.

The Boston wool market is in the same condition as previously noticed. Uncertainty as to the future makes buyers very cautious in their movements. They hesitate to purchase wool in anticipation of their wants and requirements on account of the unsettled state of trade caused by labor movements. Wool is beginning to arrive quite freely. During the next three months the stock must rapidly accumulate. Prices are opening higher in the interior markets than current rates on the sea-board. The position of California wools is not yet clearly defined. The price is still very high at San Francisco and a good deal of wool has been bought at high prices. The Boston dealers claim they have not bought it, but a good deal of it will find its way into New England. Nevertheless, if prices there are to be the basis for this market, an advance is to be looked for.

Guarding the Philadelphia Mint.

Two gatling guns were received at the Philadelphia Mint Sunday. The ordinance was requested by Superintendent Cox for the better protection of the large amount of money constantly stored in the vaults. The fact may be stated that great care has always been exercised for the protection of the building at night, and after dark the building looks like a fort. Its corridors and passages bristle with arms which are not displayed to the public in the day, and armed watchmen patrol the building both inside and out during the night.

The Washington correspondent of the Tribune says: The Senate Judiciary Committee will probably report against confirming John Goode as Solicitor-General. It is said, however, that Goode claims enough Republican votes to secure his confirmation. Even if rejected, he expects to be retained in office the same as Pillsbury and Chase, who were rejected by the Senate but who are filling their offices in defiance of law. The President has so far refused to make other nominations for these places.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. (Feb. 21-swf-1yr)

California's New Senator on the Political Situation.

The Washington Sunday Gazette contains the following:

"If you haven't anything particular to do for an hour, come walk with me, and I will introduce you to California's new Senator—perhaps you can get an 'interview' out of him," said a well-known Californian to a Sunday Gazette reporter.

"It's a go," replied the reporter, and fifteen minutes thereafter he was formally introduced—in the presence of eight or ten Californians who were enjoying their fragrant Havana's, and chatting about various matters. All being politicians, they naturally discussed the present political situation, and the outlook for 1888. Senator Hearst took a lively interest in the conversation, and expressed himself without reserve, as the reporter and others propounded question after question.

"Senator, have you called on the President yet?"

"Oh, yes," was the response, "I have called on the President twice since I arrived in the city, and had a very pleasant interview with him each time."

"What do you think of him?"

"I think he is a great man, sir—a wonderful man, I may say. In fact," continued the Senator, as he got up and paced the floor, "I look upon Mr. Cleveland as the greatest President this country has had since Jefferson's time. That is my candid opinion and I have no hesitancy whatever in saying it."

"Don't you think he is rather partial to the Mugwumps?" interjected a grizzled old fellow—a "Forty-Niner"—probably over in one corner of the room.

"Well, I don't know about that. If he is I can only say that he is a mighty shrewd politician, and it's mighty good politics," continued the Senator as he resumed his seat. "The Mugwumps, as you call them—I call them Stalwarts—come to our aid in the hour of need. They broke away from party ties and party associations and voted for the man we nominated, and why shouldn't the President give them some slight recognition? They are entitled to it, I think, and I repeat it's good politics for the President to recognize them."

"Yes, but the Democrats elected Cleveland, not the Mugwumps," squeaked old Forty-Nine.

"Nothing of the kind," replied the Senator. "We helped elect Cleveland, and so did the gentlemen you call Mugwumps. It's true the Democrats polled a large majority of the votes, but Mr. Cleveland would not be President to-day if it had not been for the assistance of our Mugwump friends. Had they failed us Mr. Blaine would now be the Chief Executive of this great and growing country."

"Speaking of Mr. Blaine, Senator, he carried the Pacific slope with a hurrah in 1884. Do you think he can do it in 1888 if he gets the nomination?" asked the reporter.

"Not if President Cleveland will consent to enter the race against him," was the quick reply.

"Will you kindly tell me why?"

"Yes, sir; I will," was the response, "and I'll give you three good reasons for saying so," said Senator Hearst, as he lit a fresh cigar. "In the first place, President Cleveland not long after his inauguration issued an order compelling all white people owning cattle on Indian reservations to remove them within a given time. Strenuous efforts were made by the cattle men to have the order revoked. They failed. The cattle had to go, and that act alone made Cleveland thousands of friends in the Western country. In the next place, he issued an order requiring all wire fences enclosing the public domain to be removed. The owners raised a great row over the matter. They begged and pleaded and threatened, but it was no use. The wire followed the cattle and had to go. That act made him hosts of additional friends in the West, and last, but not least, his message to Congress the other day on the labor question. That was a grand paper from a noble man. He showed conclusively in that message that he had the good of all citizens in this country at heart; that he is fully alive to the distress that to-day prevails among the working people of all classes. That last act in itself, to say nothing about the two former reasons I have just given, is sufficient to insure the Pacific slope to Mr. Cleveland in 1888 without a doubt if he can be persuaded to make the race, as I sincerely hope he will."

Thanking the Senator for the interview the reporter quietly withdrew, not, however, without observing that old Forty-Nine was sound asleep in an easy chair. The Mugwump question was too much for him—as it is for a good many Democrats that are not Forty-Niners.

MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.—In the District Court at Hamilton last Saturday evening Edward Cratchley was found guilty of murder in the first degree. Cratchley shot and killed John Howlett, near Huntington Pass, White Pine county, a week ago. The evidence was all circumstantial, but strongly so. The jury was out only forty minutes. Sentence will be passed on the 13th inst.

ENCOURAGING HOME INDUSTRIES.

The Silver State remarks: Hon. W. M. Stewart, who has been a resident of California for many years past, imbued, no doubt, with a laudable ambition to again serve the corporations in Congress as Senator from Nevada, was announced last Fall by the Reno Gazette as a candidate for United States Senator from this State. As a preliminary movement toward the goal of his ambition he delivered a speech on silver in Virginia city, and, like an old sinner who gets frightened at the enormity of his offenses and becomes converted under excitement, he denounced the monopolies he had voted to create while in the Senate, and either through forgetfulness of the circumstance or the presumption that the people of this State were ignorant of the manner in which it was accomplished, asserted that the clause demonetizing silver was surreptitiously incorporated in the Revised Statutes of the United States, as no such act had ever passed Congress, though his vote is recorded in the Congressional Globe in favor of the bill. This was his first move on the political checker-board, and as it was applauded by his clockers the next was the building of a residence at Carson and the announcement that he had become a permanent resident of Nevada, although he had not lived a month in the State for the last fifteen years. This permanent residence, we are told, was recently furnished, every article having been purchased in San Francisco, and now it is announced by the Carson Index, which favors the candidacy of the ex-Senator, that it has been provisioned for at least six months, every article, including flour, oils, groceries, etc., having been purchased over the mountains by the permanent resident and shipped direct to his permanent residence.

Of course Mr. Stewart has an undisputed right to purchase his supplies wherever he pleases, but a person who aspires to so exalted a position as that of United States Senator, as the candidate of a party which claims to favor protection to home industries, should endeavor to be consistent, by practicing, to a slight extent at least, what his party preaches to a very great extent. Doubtless next Fall, if Mr. Stewart remains in the field for Senator, he will advocate protection, and proclaim from the stump that home industries must be encouraged, though he encourages the farmers and merchants of Nevada by purchasing his flour and groceries in San Francisco.

An Important Mining Sale.

The True Fissure says: For several months past it has been rumored that a transfer of the property of the Victor Consolidated Mining Company to the Candelaria Water Works and Milling Company was imminent. The sale has at last been effected and on Tuesday the transfer was made. The importance of this sale and its effect upon the future prosperity of our camp, can hardly be estimated. It has long been understood that the Victor was a valuable, but very much mismanaged mine. Lawsuits after lawsuits have been piled up on it until it was almost buried under an avalanche of legal papers. That it is now free from embarrassments and in the hands of a company possessed of the nerve and enterprise to work it for what it is worth is a matter for congratulation. It shows that Colonel Sutherland meant business when he told our people that his company proposed to go ahead and develop the mineral resources of one of the richest mining districts in the world. Colonel Sutherland has just arrived in New York from England, where he has been negotiating the sale, and his return here to put men at work opening up the mine is looked forward to with pleasure. The old camp may yet get on its feet again and recover its former prosperous and prominent footing in the mining world.

A San Francisco correspondent of the Carson Free Lance writes the annexed: "You would be surprised to know how well posted the old sagebrushers keep themselves in regard to Nevada affairs. They know all about our political arrangements—local as well as general—and not one of them but what thinks himself a true Nevada, just as much entitled to hop in and make a fight for Constable or Justice of the Peace (or any other) as any all-the-time resident. This may explain the feeling evinced heretofore and at present by Shuron, Fair, Mackay, Stewart, Hobart, and others."

The Reno baseballers, who claim the title of Typos, should have assumed the name of Devils, for surely that peculiar dress of the club is very suggestive of the infernal regions.—Carson Tribune.

We are sorry that the boys' suits brought Parky's future so vividly to his mind.

OVERLAND MONTHLY FOR MAY.—This periodical appears promptly with the beginning of each month. There is a very good variety of articles; but none of them are of a very striking character. For the most part they are readable, and that is more than can be said of the quality of many of the articles appearing in the Eastern magazines. The leading articles in this number are noted as follows: "Biscache Bill—An Andean Sketch," Sybil Russell Bogue; "Rivals," Virginia Peyton; "A Lonely Vigil," T. C. Jones; "For Money"—xiv., xv., xvi., Helen Lake; "The Martial Experiences of the California Volunteers," Edward Carlson; "Song of the Apple Bloom," Laura M. Marquand; "A Story of the Camp Meeting," Mary E. Grafton; "Prison Labor," Robert T. Devlin; "In Favilla—A Phantasmagoria," Geraldine M. Bonner; "Discussion of the Liquor Traffic," G. A. Moore; "Must Life, Beginning Here, Necessarily End Here?" E. A. Clark; "Dies Ira—A New Translation," John S. Hager; "How We Went Trouting," W. S. Hutchison; "Sonnets to Poets—"The Bards of Polyphema," Mary J. Reid; "Chancer," M. B. M. Toland; "In Memory of D. G. Rosetti," E. L. Higgins; "Jean Ingelow," Francis E. Sheldon; "The Twilight of the Poets," Charles S. Greene; Recent Minor Verse.

COL. SHAW'S LECTURE.—The Euterprise says:
Never since the dawn of peace has there been so much interest in the story of the great war of the Rebellion as there is at the present time. It is believed this interest has been greatly stimulated by the publication of the series of war articles in the Century Magazine, the contributions of distinguished officers on both sides. Grant, Longstreet, McClellan, Hill, Imboden, Buell, Porter and other celebrities have written up their campaigns in the Century, which superbly illustrates the respective stories. The pictures published in Harper's Weekly and Frank Leslie's Illustrated during the war have also been reproduced in two large volumes, and these books have had an enormous sale. The unprecedented sale of General Grant's memoirs in another manifestation of the deep public interest in the story of the war. In the larger cities a permanent and attractive entertainment has been established in the form of the Cyclorama, which is nothing less than the reproduction of the actual battlefields on canvass so as to create startling and striking illusions. These have had the effect of creating a demand for war literature. Colonel Shaw's idea of a lecture on the war, illustrated by a gigantic map or birdseye view of the whole field of operation, is intended as a substitute for the Cyclorama in the smallest towns. With the addition of music suited to the occasion he hopes to be able to give an exceedingly attractive and instructive entertainment. His lectures will be delivered in all the principal towns on the Pacific Coast, winding up in San Francisco about the time of the meeting of the Grand Reorganization of the Grand Army of the Republic.

THE LITTLE GIANT FENCE MACHINE FOR MAKING THE UNIVERSAL COMBINATION FENCE—DAVID YOUNG, PATENTEE. —Young and Jennings have just received one of these machines for which they have purchased the sole right to manufacture and sell this now universally known and guaranteed to be the best, most durable and portable fence ever manufactured, and peculiarly and especially adapted to fill a long felt want. This fence is needed and in time will be used by everyone that requires a fence, either around the house, garden or ranch. It is cheap, durable and serviceable, to keep in check horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, chickens, etc., and restrain dogs and coyotes, having all the advantages of a picket fence in restraining animals from jumping, and not so liable to decay, and at much less cost, and no barbs to injure valuable stock, thus placing it far in advance of any other fence now in use—hence it is inevitably the fence of the future. Wherever this fence has been introduced it has superceded all others. It stands without a rival, and why? Because it is portable. A half mile of this fence may be taken down and removed in a few hours. The material may be hauled and a large number of stacks fenced in a single day. Fields may be fenced for temporary pasturage to turn all kinds of stock, on short notice and but little labor. It is strong—it has been proven by actual test that it is six times stronger than barbed wire. It is durable—it will last three times as long as any other fence. It is hog proof, horse proof, coyote proof, rabbit proof. No fence hitherto tried, except this, will keep sheep in and dogs and coyotes out. It is cheap—in Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and other States where it has been introduced and extensively used it is declared to be from 30 to 40 per cent. cheaper than any other fence, and taking into consideration its durability, at least 50 per cent. cheaper. We can refer you to thousands who have used it—this is their testimony. We will be pleased to furnish, upon application, any information desired, and we think that we can demonstrate that our fence is all that we claim for it. It is the fence.

Apply to Young & Jennings, at the office of Studebaker and Carriage Agency, corner of Virginia and Second streets, Reno, Nevada.

THE SCHOOL CENSUS.—The annual taking of the school census by the marshals appointed by the various Boards of School Trustees commenced May the 1st. Under the law the marshal has the whole month of May in which to complete his work, and until the fifteenth day of June in which to report the result of such labors to the County Superintendent of Schools. The statute is particular in requiring the marshal to visit each habitation, home, residence, domicile or place of abode in his district, and by actual observation and investigation enumerate the census children of the same.
